

Canstockphoto images via Fotosearch

By admin

Following an acquisition, Canstockphoto.com images will be made available via Fotosearch.

"Introduction of Can Stock Photo content will begin on the Brazilian and Japanese sites, www.fotosearch.com.br and www.fotosearch.jp with more sites to follow. Once the content is fully rolled-out, Can Stock Photo contributors will be exposed to millions of Fotosearch visitors every week. Through Fotosearch, contributors will be able to sell images as prints".

Canstock have confirmed that all of their images will be made available via fotosearch, no hand picking of images will take place. Up to now my canstock sales have been a little slow, and while that's better than the sites that don't earn any income, having Fotosearch and Can Stock under common ownership can do nothing but improve sales levels.

"Can Stock Photo will be marketing its website more aggressively to attract even more stock photography buyers. Duncan Enman, who created Can Stock Photo while a university student in Nova Scotia, Canada, will remain involved with Can Stock Photo."

Considering fotosearch is currently an aggregator of traditional rights managed iand full price royalty free iimages, the news is another landmark in the acceptance of microstock iinto stock photo industry mainstream.
